Chemoil has announced that it has opened a new regional office in New York.

Chemoil has been supplying bunker fuel in New York since 1997, and the company hopes that the new operation will enable it 'to better service its customers in the New York region, while providing a platform for business development and growth in the US East Coast'.

Chemoil's Chairman and CEO, Mike Bandy, commented: 'New York is one of the busiest ports in the United States and a very important market for Chemoil. The company is committed to developing our capabilities in New York and along the US East Coast, including leveraging the synergies between all of our US operations where it will provide significant value for our shipping customers.'

Gregg Schwartz, who recently worked as Regional Trading Manager for Chevron Global Marine Products, has been appointed to the role of General Manager for the New York regional office.
